The publication of this work will be continued by the subscribers; and in due time they will publish in the several States a complete list of agents, who will be prepared to furnish copies promptly in every part of the Union.

That the author may have ample time to prepare his work according to his views of completeness; that the publishers may be enabled to issue the numbers with promptness and at stated periods thereby protecting the interest of their agents, the following arrangement is announced in the full confidence that it will prove acceptable to all, viz: To stereotype the next six numbers, making ten in all, thus completing the first volume before any more are published.

The numbers will then be issued monthly, without interruption, to the end. Those who prefer the volume bound will be accommodated without extra charge for binding; and the numbers already extra charge for binding; and the numbers already published, from one to four, will be taken in part pay, if not injured, at their full cost to subscribers. In announcing this unavoidable delay for a few months, the publishers are not unmindful of the earnest desire of many speedily to possess the work. The necessity of accommodating the author, whose labors are incessant, will appear obvious to all without particular explanation.

From the Journal of Commerce.

there was a fine sheet of water, large enough to be denominated a lake. It was called Glover pond, and it remains so marked upon the map, although but a small silver brook now runs along by the road side. The catastrophe which befel this peaceful little lake, giving it the sur-name of "runaway," may be remembered by some readers; but the story will bear repetition, while something new can be added from the lapse of years, and a survey of the rich acres so unexpectedly added to the domain of the husbandman. Glover pond had for ages slept quietly in its lofty bed, unknown to fame till its hegira made an epoch in history. A rim of earth confined the waters in their place and an artificial viaduct turned the wheels of one or two mills that stood a little distance be low the margin. The proprietor of one of these establishments, intending to increase the water power in a dry time, deepened the trench. The sandy bottom gave way and suddenly the rivu-let became a river! The workmen fled for their lives, sounding the alarm to the few in-habitants below, who had barely time to escape.

verted into a fugitive stream, supposed to be about twenty feet deep, creating and finding a channel, thundered down the valley to Barton high, and making a clean sweep of houses.

cattle, farms, and everything in its track, till the waters were all drawn off but a little stripling brook which marks the centre of the quon dam lake.

A man fishing upon the broad Memphrema-gog, ignorant of the avalanche from Glover pond, wondered what in nature or in reason would give the water a sudden elevation of two feet. The phenomenon was explained by the furious ingress of a truant lake a mile in length from half to three quarters of a mile in width: and of proportionate depth. Great havoc was made of existing property by such an informa writ of ejectment served without notice upon the tenants, but some good follows the revul-sions of nature. The road from Glover to Bar-

PROSPECTUS

"WASHINGTON SENTINEL." PROPOSE to publish in the city of Washing ton, in September, a political newspaper, untre the name of the WASHINGTON SENTI

NEL.
In doing so, it is proper I should make known the principles it will maintain, and the policy it will advocate.
It will support cordially and earnestly the principles of the Democratic party of the United States, it does not propose to be the organ of any Department of the Government, except in so far as an independent maintenance of the doctrines of that party may represent its opinions and express its views.

It will not be ambitious to commend itself to the people by a blind flattery of their rulers. It will seek public support by the bold avowal of the sentiments which are common to the genuine Democracy of the Union, and by the condemnation of all such as may conflict with them, from whatever counter they were constituted by whatever quarter they may come. It will seek to be (and it will endeavor to deserve the title) the organ of the Democratic party of the United States.

The Sentinel will maintain, as a fundamental truth of that great party, that the States formed the Union between them by the ratification of the Constitution as a compact; by which, also, they created the Federal Government, and delegated to it, as their common agent, the powers expressly specified in it, with an explicit reservation of all others to the States, or to their separate govern-ments. The exercise of any powers beyond these thus delegated, is, therefore, an usurpation of the reserved authority of the States by the agent of their own creation.

The Sentinel will uphold and defend the Union upon the basis of the rights of the States—under the Constitution—and thus by sedulously guarding the latter, it will the more effectually strengthen and perpetuate the former.

and perpetuate the former.

With regard to the exercise of the powers of the Federal Government, the Sentiner will take as the principles of its action, that Congress shall exercise no power which has not been delegated by the Constitution, according to a strict and fair interpretation of its language and spirit; and that it shall not seek to attain indirectly an object through the exercise of constitutional power, for the direct attainment of which it has no delegation of power attainment of which it has no delegation of power in other words, all powers exercised must be clearly granted, and all granted powers must be used for no purpose, except such as is clearly intended by the Constitution.

In respect to the internal administration of the

In respect to the internal administration of the In respect to the internal administration of the Government, the Sentinez, will sustain the settled policy of the Democratic party. It will abor to inculcate this cardinal doctrine of Democratic in ternal policy:—that this Government will best promote the freedom and prosperity of the people of the States, by being less ambitious to exercise power, and more anxious to preserve liberty; and by leaving to the individual States the manage ment of all their domestic concerns—while it contents itself with guarding the confederacy from external violence, and directing the foreign policy of the country to the promotion of the common interests, and defence of the common rights, and honor of the States composing it.

The SENTINEL will advocate such a progressive oreign policy as will suit itself to the exigencies and correspond with the expanding interests of the country. That policy should be energetic and decided; but should temper firmness with liberality and make its highest ends consist with the strictest principles of justice. The real interests of the country, upon each occasion demanding attention, will be its guide in the course the Sentinel will essentially aggressive. In the growing sense of weakness of some of the nations of the Old World, and the ambitious restlessness of others, a com-mon motive to colonial extension has developed from abroad with our domestic concerns, will prompt us to avoid it in the affairs of other countries, unless by their foreign or colonial policy our peace should be threatened, our security endangered, or our interests invaded. For when the selfish interests of other nations prompt a foreign or colonial policy which infringes upon our rights and places in the pathway of our commerce a dangerous and unfriendly rival, such a policy must be resisted by remonstrance, and, if need be, by

Our foreign policy should, indeed, be defensive; but to be properly defensive, it must sometimes be apparently aggressive. Our administration should be vigilant, watchful, and energetic. The world be vigilant, watchful, and energetic. The world is full of important movements, commercial and political, deeply concerning American trade and American power. It is time we had an American foreign polity. We must have it. We cannot avoid it if we would. We have larger interests, and a greater stake in the world and its destiny, than every other people. We occupy the best portion of a continent, with no neighbors but a colony, and a worn-out, anarchical despotism. We are the only people whose own land, without colonial detendencies, is washed by the two great oceans of the world. Our agricultural productions are more varied and more essential to civilized life, and to human progress—our mineral and manufacturing resources more vast—our facilities and capacity for human progress—our mineral and manufacturing resources more vast—our facilities and capacity for internal and foreign commerce more extended than those of any other people living under one government. A continent, to a great extent, unexplored and exhaustless in its yet hidden wealth is at our feet. European trade seeks the great East through avenues which are at our doors, or must be made through our own limits. Europe, Asia, Africa, and the isles of the sea, lying all around us, look to us as the rising power, through the agency of whose example, and ever widening and extending, though peaceful influences, the blessings of liberty, civilization, and religion, are destined to triumph over the barbarism and superstition of the millions of the world. And shall such a people refuse to lay hold upon their destiny, and a people refuse to lay hold upon their destiny, and act upon the high mission to which it is called? A mission so full of hope, though so laden with responsibility, which, if properly directed, must make our confederacy the harbinger of peace to the world, as well as the peaceful arbiter of it

The SENTINEL will, therefore, advocate a bold and earnest foreign policy, such as the condition of the country demands; but it will advocate it under the flag of the country—nowhere else. Its foreig policy must be consistent with the spotless hono and immpeachable good faith of the country. To be respectable at home and abroad, and to be great in the eyes of the world, it must ask for nothing in the eyes of the world, it must ask for nothing but what is right, and submit to nothing that is wrong. It must be liberal and magnanimous to the rights of others, and firm and immoveable in insisting on its own. It must, in fine, be true to its own interests, rights, and honor—it cannot the be false to those of other nations.

Such, then, is the chart by which we shall be guided. Independent and free, we shall endeavor to be honest and truthful. The true friends of democratic principles we shall cordially support and defend. Its enemies in the field or in ambush we shall oppose, and on all proper occasions de-

To our future brethren of the press we extend the hand of friendly greeting. The Sentinel is the rival of no press of its own party—the personal enemy of none of the other. The present Democratic Administration has ou est wishes for its success in the establishment of the great principles upon which it came into power and in its honest labors to attain such an end will find the SENTINEL its friend and coadjutor. TERMS: For the Daily paper, $10 a year, in advance. from the feet of the monster as he passed out of the house. It seems that after his discharge on Wednesday, he hung about the premises, and made use of threats towards the girl Ellen for not marrying him, attributing her refusal to the advice given her by Mr. and Mrs. Wickham.

On Friday morning he left the house, took his trunk, and went to Greenport. There, he left the trunk, and on that night is supposed to have walked back to the residence of Mr. Wickham, a distance of about ten miles, broke into the premises, and no doubt intended to murder all in the house, and would have accomplished the bloody deed had not the girls been awakened by the cries of Mrs. Wickham. Up to the latest account, no arrest had been made, and it was supposed that the murderer was secret din the woods, or, perchance, making his way towards New York. The inhabitants, however, were out in full force in pursuit, and no doult the monster will be captured. He is described as being six feet in height, broad shoulders, and a fast rolling walk, chews tobacco freely, and is about twenty-eight years of age.

Justice Osborn was at Ravenswood, Long Island, when the news of this most atrocious murder arrived, and immediately took such neasures as were in his power to prevent the escape of the murderer. On his arrival in the city, he dispatched officers Dowling and Lord, two of the most efficient police officers in the lepartment, to Cutchogue, with instructions to make a thorough search for the assassin, and to render all the aid in their power to the local authorities in bringing him to justice.

LOST LUGGAGE OFFICE .- One of the most interesting curiosities in the Chrystal Palace, is the collection of specimens preserved in the office for lost articles. All articles picked up by the police, have been ticketed and registered here from the first, and as few people have been aware of the existence of such a receptation of the company of the control of the control articles in cle, the accumulation of personal articles is large and decidedly miscellaneous. About three hundred cambric and lace handkerchiefs, cf all grades and shades, up to a fifty dollar article, as many veils, a large stock of gloves, a surpris-ing assortment of babies' shoes and stockings, some hundred articles of jewelry, ranging 's nigh as $100 in value, and an indescribable variety of odds and ends, have been collected n this curious omnium gatherum. Hums a nature, especially female, is also epitomized here. The ladies have scarcely lost any fans, though their handkerchiefs and veils would seem to have been sown broadcast. Locks of false hair are interspersed with other wearing apparel. Many spectacle cases, were found, but the spectators had universally clung to their spectacles, and doubtless, made good use of them. Ladies' beaux (or bows-the officer did not spell the word, so that it remains an oiguous) have been lost at the Palace, in great numbers, leaving the wearers of course more or less disconsolate. A side bottle of brandy was picked up, from which the loser had the misfortune to have extracted most of the contents. In short, every body who has lost anything may rely upon finding it or its counterpart, in the "Old Curiosity Shop" of the Crystal Palace Police.—N. Y. Courier.

A WARM NORTH LAKE. - The "Quebco Chronicle" says that nearly due north of Que-bec, one hundred and eight miles as the bird flies, and probably one hundred and thirty by a constructed road, lies a magnificent lake, covering an area of 600 square miles, and abounding with a variety of fish. It is fed by numerous rivers, some of them navigable for a considerable distance to schooners and batteaux. It is lake St. John. From it flows the "Great Discharge," or main stream of the Saguenay river as far down as Chicoutimi, a few miles beyond which the river is navigable to ships of the heaviest tonnage. On either bank of this river may be seen a flourishing settlement; the soil is of a rich and loamy nature, producing wheat, corn, fruit, &c., equal in quality and quantity to any raised in Upper Canada, and although 14 degrees further north than Que-bec, yet from the peculiarity of its geographical position, its climate is milder in winter than hat of Montreal." For many miles on both banks of the river, as well as along the shores of the lake, are thousands of acres of the finest land, covered with a noble forest.

A Clergyman's Opinion.

The distinguished author and divine, Rev. Mr. Bacon, in a sermon last Sunday week in Philadelphia, declared that the newspaper press is only second to the Bible for moral force in a representative government. With its twenty-five millions of papers issued annually, it penetrates every house and reaches every reader. If the preacher, with his hundreds of hearers, has a commanding influence for good upon his congregation, moulding their morals and enlightening their understandings, how much greater must be the influence and responsibility of the press, which talks daily to its multitude of readers. The following remarks from the sermon are interesting: "The newspaper, quite as much as our pub lic schools, is, in America, the great creator of a nation of thinkers and debaters. The Ame The company will then proceed to import the camels from some accessible region of the Old rican editor aims not at the choice diction of an essayist, and pays little attention to mere abstractions and vain theories. He writes as if he would give the greatest quantity of thought in the briefest space. He excels in paragraphs, which are like the sharp shooting of riflemen; his heavy artillery he reserves for occasional editorials, but he seldom plies the cannon where a bullet will do the work. But, as a characteristic of our people, he is ever ready to lay aside his editorial matter to make room for news. He knows men, and not deeds. His language possesses a clear and concise utterance. The pulpit must first labor to effect an improvement in the character of the religious press. The religious newspapers are far be-hind the secular press, in breadth of views and comprehensiveness, and liberality of action, and, he might venture to say, in religion itself. They take most of their news from the daily press, and even their reports of religious meetings-while it is not unfrequent for them to turn around and charge the reporters with irreligion. The religious press is too oft n narrow-minded-it does seem to understaid its true policy and duties; and the violence and animosity that pervade its columns are even worse than that of political editors on the eve of an election.
